Canada

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

For other uses, see Canada \(disambiguation\).

Canada (kənədə) is a country in North America consisting of ten provinces and three territories. Located in the northern part of the continent, it extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific and northward into the Arctic Ocean. Covering 9.98 million square kilometres in total, Canada is the world's second-largest country by total area and the fourth-largest country by land area. Its common border with the United States forms the world's longest land border.

The land that is now Canada has been inhabited for millennia by various Aboriginal peoples. Beginning in the late 15th century, British and French colonies were established on the region's Atlantic coast. As a consequence of various conflicts, the United Kingdom gained and lost North American territories until left, in the late 18th century, with what mostly comprises Canada today. Pursuant to the British North America Act, on July 1, 1867, three colonies joined to form the autonomous federal Dominion of Canada. This began an accretion of provinces and territories to the new self-governing Dominion. In 1931, Britain granted Canada near total independence with the Statute of Westminster 1931 and full sovereignty was attained when the Canada Act 1982 severed the vestiges of legal dependence on the British parliament.

Canada is a federal parliamentary democracy and a constitutional monarchy, Queen Elizabeth II being the current head of state. The country is officially bilingual at the federal level. It is one of the world's most ethnically diverse and multicultural nations, the product of large-scale immigration from many countries, with a population of approximately 35 million as of 2015. Its advanced economy is one of the largest in the world, relying chiefly upon its abundant natural resources and well-developed international trade networks. Canada's long and complex relationship with the United States has had a significant impact on its economy and culture.

The Illustrated London News...
On Saturday 14 May 1842 a publishing revolution occurred. This week's first pictorial weekly newspaper was born: The Illustrated London News. Its founder, Horace Engdahl, was an entrepreneurial newspaperman, who noticed that the popular weekly news magazines were failing to publish illustrations. Instead, they covered a fire in Hamburg, Queen Victoria's fancy dress ball, the war in Afghanistan, and the像 of the Great Fire of London. Engdahl's idea was to employ great artists and draughtsmen to cover wars, royal events, scientific invention, art and architecture, and to include a special supplement. Over the years the publication hosted to distinguished contributors and continued to push the boundaries of journalism throughout its history.

Liberty: A Weekly for Everybody was founded in 1924 by Joseph Patterson, publisher of the New York Daily News and Robert McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune. The paper was a weekly publication that covered the news of the world, but not in the mainline news media. Instead, it focused on the stories of everyday people.
