Ovid® Quick Reference Card

What are the NEJM Group resources now available on Ovid?

Ovid is the exclusive institutional digital distributor of the journals the New England Journal of Medicine, NEJM Evidence, and NEJM Catalyst Innovations in Care Delivery, as well as the journal article summaries collected in NEJM Journal Watch Online.

Subscription to any journal includes dual access on both Ovid and the NEJM.org platform, which is hosted on Atypon.

What is available on both Ovid and NEJM Group sites?

The New England Journal of Medicine
- Original full-text research, review articles, and all other content from 1990
- PowerPoint slide sets and downloadable images, figures, and videos
- Article-level metrics, including Altmetrics, enhanced media coverage, and other data points that provide insight on an article's global impact
- Supplementary material, including protocols, disclosure forms, and clinical trial registrations
- Available on NEJM.org only: 90+ instructional videos, hundreds of interactive, multimedia tools
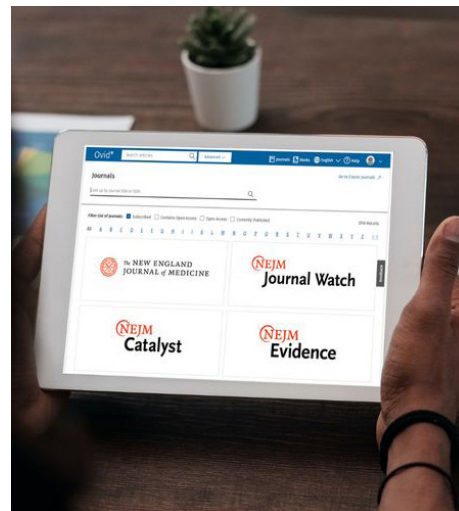

NEJM Evidence
- Full-text original, peer-reviewed research, review articles, case presentations, and commentary on clinical trial methods and results
- Patient Platform stories of patients in clinical trials
- Stats, STAT! animated videos explaining statistical concepts videos and the Tomorrow's Trial podcast
- Supplementary material, including protocols, disclosure forms, and clinical trial registrations
- Continuously published new articles

NEJM Catalyst Innovations in Care Delivery
- Full-text, in-depth, peer-reviewed articles, case studies, and other resources on innovations in healthcare delivery
- Audio and video Insights Interviews and video clips of NEJM Catalyst events
- Access to live-streamed, expert-speaker events and moderated discussions
- Exclusive survey reports from the NEJM Catalyst Insights Council, a group of over 17,000 healthcare leaders who share their candid views on critical issues and topics
- Reference links to related resources

NEJM Journal Watch Online
- Full-text research summaries of the latest and most important articles from over 200 medical journals
- Expert perspectives in cardiology, general medicine, hospital medicine, infectious disease, neurology, and oncology & hematology
- 19 email alerts, in a range of specialties and topics
- Guideline Watch articles summarizing key points of clinical guidelines
- Online media such as blogs and audio interviews

The "gold standard" for research and best practices in clinical medicine, now exclusively on Ovid®

Ovid functionality expands access and research through:

- Cross-searching across all NEJM Group journals
- Natural-language searching for all user levels
- Email alerts on latest news and just-published issues
- Time-saving tools to streamline research activities.

Search across all NEJM Group journals with one query

- Select one or more NEJM Group resources by clicking on one or more names.

Natural-language, Basic Search (for all Ovid Journals, not just NEJM Group)

- Choose Search on the Main Navigation Bar, then select the Basic Search mode.
- Enter a complete topic or question and click Search.
- Select Include Related Terms to broaden your search.
- Select Include Multimedia to include multimedia within your search results.

Automatic email AutoAlerts and electronic Tables of Contents (eTOCS)

- Receive AutoAlert saved searches via email or RSS when new articles that match as saved become available on the platform.
- Receive notification via email or RSS when tables of contents for new journal issues are available on the platform.

Questions?

Contact Ovid Customer Support

Email: support@ovid.com

My Projects — store and manage search results, full text, and multimedia

- Add materials to My Projects by dragging them into the My Projects area in Results Tools, or by clicking the Add to My Projects button in a search result.
- Output content from MyProjects via Print, Email, Export options; Remove (delete) saved.

ovid.com

3-V128